Worst Snowstorm of Winter Blankets State

FALL OF FROM 3 TO 12 INCHES BLOCKS ROADS

Southern Ohio Hardest Hit, Rural Schools Closed, 20-Foot Drifts Reported.

ALL ROUTES OPEN HERE

Highway Crews Battle Drifts Throughout Night; Driving Hazardous.

Mansfield was buried under one of the heaviest snowfalls of the season today with the return of winter which drove before it the spring-like temperatures which prevailed for several days.

The three-inch blanket of white which covered the Richland county area reached as deep as 12 inches in southern counties and highway crews battled to clear roads of heavy drifts.

The storm, the worst of the winter in state, shackled coal mines, closed hundreds of rural schools, blocked highways and hampered food deliveries.

Three thousand eastern Ohio miners were kept from work as highway crews battled to cope with drifts that reached 20 feet in Belmont county. More that 5,000 school children were snowbound at home in the same area.

The snow fell most heavily in the southern and eastern counties, where conditions were the worst in 15 years.

Hits Adjoining States.

All of western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia were hit by the storm that broke late yesterday and was still swirling across the area today.

While Mansfielders floundered to work this morning, they viewed with some relief, the weather forecast which predicted "generally fair tonight."

The weatherman predicted increasing cloudiness Thursday to be followed by light snow and not so cold in the western part of the state.

Mansfield was one of the coldest spots in Ohio this morning, the temperature hovering at 16 degrees at 8 a. m., the lowest in the past 24 hours. At noon it had climbed to 20 degrees, but still four degrees below the 24 recorded yesterday.

In other parts of the state ther-

Valentine Rush at Postoffice as Bad as at Christmas

Mansfield postal employes yesterday and today experienced a miniature edition of the annual Christmas rush, as Mansfielder's mailed the largest volume of Valentine mail and parcels in the history of the postoffice.

According to Herman E. Homberger, postmaster, the largest volume of Valentine mail in the history of the Mansfield office was mailed by Mansfielders yesterday, when letter and card cancelations reached 45,000.

Yesterday's cancelations showed an increase of about 20,000 over the daily average cancelations of about 25,000, Harry W. Zellner, superintendent of mails said. A large increase was also noted in the number of parcel post packages mailed. Most of these packages were candy, he added.

There was a continuous line at the stamp windows, according to Homberger.

Capital Has a Dandy Time On Fun-Poking Valentines

Rhymer's Prize Gems Put Garner, Farley and Third Term Controversy Out In Front In Comic Style.

By EDDY GILMORE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Armed with his trusty thesaurus, the old Valentine rhymer moved into the capital today, said it was the richest field in the nation, and began to unloose his penny-dreadfuls.

The first was a lace-trimmed dandy from which he expected a large sale among discriminating people of all political parties. It was designed with a White House address.

Roses are red.
Violets are blue.
What's on your mind—
Three terms or two?

The second beauty he turned out was decorated with Texas blue bonnets. It pictured Vice President Garner, a cigar in his mouth, fishing in the muddy Potomac.

I get up at 6 o'clock,
At 9 I hit the hay.
But life would be a whole lot simpler
If the chief would only say.

Another showed bushy-browed John L. Lewis, his body twisted in the shape of a question mark, shaking his shaggy head.

Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
I haven't said who will.
But I've made clear who won't do.

The valentine designed for James A. Farley shows the genial chairman of the Democratic national committee dressed up as a lady-in-waiting.

We've chosen old Chicago
As the place for the Democratic bout.
When? . . . You've got me buddy.
I'm waiting the Republicans out.

The valentine which promised to be the most popular of all, however, shows a riderless steed galloping around a race track far ahead of the field.

Racing is a wondrous thing
And life should run its course;
Oh, lightning, if you're going to hit,
Please strike this old dark horse.

He was a member of Good Hope Lutheran church and active in the Sunday school.

RAPS M'GREGOR AS BRICKER'S 'ERRAND BOY'

Ashbrook's Blast at Delaware Stirs Up 17th District Congressional Race.

GETS CHANCE TO ANSWER

G. O. P. Nominee to Address Two Meetings Here Tonight, One Non-Partisan Affair.

With the election less than two weeks away, the 17th district congressional race had provided its first fireworks today with Byron B. Ashbrook, Democratic nominee, charging his Republican opponent, J. Harry McGregor, is a "professional politician" and an "errand boy of Gov. Bricker."

McGregor will get a chance to answer this charge tonight when he speaks at two meetings here although one is a non-partisan gathering.

Ashbrook, nephew of the late William A. Ashbrook whose death left vacant the 17th district seat in congress, blasted at McGregor at a meeting in Delaware, charging he is a "professional politician in whose behalf our economy-loving Republican governor called this unnecessary and unwanted special election." He referred to the special primaries of last week and the election on Feb. 27.

Ashbrook also scored his opponent as a "hand picked candidate as the one best suited to serve the purposes of the Republican party," and "the legislative rubber stamp and errand boy of Gov. John W. Bricker."

Guest of G. O. P. Women.

McGregor will be the guest of honor at a meeting of county Republican women at First Methodist church and later in the evening will speak at a meeting of the Mansfield League of Women Voters at the American Legion hall, which is scheduled for 8 p. m.

Ashbrook also was asked to speak at the league meeting in order to present his views on pending legislation to men and women of both political parties. Later he informed the president, Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft, that it would be impossible for him to come to Mansfield. He will be represented

PUSH JEWS OUT

Nazis Give Them 6 Hours to Get Ready for 'Trip.'

BERLIN—(AP)—Upwards of 700 Jews, routed from their homes in Stettin on six-and-one-half-hours notice for mass removal, were on trains today, presumably headed for Poland, although their exact destination was not disclosed.

The sudden removal order included virtually every Jew in the Baltic town, only the sick and feeble aged being exempted.

At 7:30 p. m. Monday, elite guards and storm troopers began visiting the homes of Jews, telling them to be ready to leave by 2 a. m.

SA and SS men took inventories of property in the homes and advised the Jews to prepare final hot meals because they probably would not get warm food for a considerable time. They were permitted to pack only a few necessities.

The only ones permitted to remain were a few who displayed documents proving they were about to emigrate.

BARES NLRB-RFC 'ARRANGEMENT'

Madden Says Set-Up Drawn to Withhold Loans to Firms Held Labor Act Violators.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — J. Warren Madden, chairman of the labor board disclosed today that the board had an arrangement with the RFC whereby it recommended that loan disbursements be withheld from companies against which the board issued Wagner act complaints.

The chairman told a house investigating committee that the arrangement had been worked out last fall after RFC officials had broached the question.

He presented a letter from Nathan Witt, labor board secretary, to George R. Cooksey, secretary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, confirming an understanding which Witt said had been reached last Aug. 2 at a conference between RFC and labor board officials.

According to Witt's letter, the understanding was that the RFC should supply the labor board weekly with a list of loans authorized to business enterprises, banks, railroads, and other borrowers.

The board agreed in turn to check this list and inform the lending corporation whether proceedings were pending before the board involving the question whether any of the borrowing companies had engaged in unfair labor practices.

"In the event that the board has issued a complaint or will do so," Witt wrote, "we will request you to withhold disbursements under the loan. After the hearing we will inform you as to the board's final decision in the case.

"If the board finds that the employer has not engaged in unfair labor practices, we will suggest that you resume disbursements under the loan. If the board finds that the employer has been guilty of violations of the National Labor Relations act, we will recommend that you continue to withhold disbursements.

"We will, of course, also keep you informed of any action of the courts which affect the board's rulings in such cases."

ALABAMA QUADS GAINING WEIGHT

Each Tips Scales at Four Pounds, Month After Birth.

JASPER, Ala.—(AP)—Alabama's Short quadruplets each approached the four-pound mark today, a month after their birth.

The babies, Faith, Hope, Charity, and brother Franklin, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Short, a coal miner's wife, near Nauvoo, Ala.

Each weighed approximately three pounds at birth.

Walker county and Jasper officials designated March 8-9 for a county-wide celebration of the quadruplets' birth. They will be christened.

The program will include a parade of approximately 3,000 persons brought into the world by Dr. H. J. Sankey, the small-town physician who delivered the quadruplets.

SNOW'S COSTLY

State Spends $550,000 Keeping Highways Free of It.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Cleaning snow and ice from state highways in January cost the state highway department $300,000 more in salaries and wages than expected, Robert S. Beightler, highway director, announced today.

The department had budgeted $250,000 for maintenance personnel for January, but spent almost $550,000, according to the director.

Because of snow and ice in December and January and today's snow storm the highway director will have to ask the board of control to transfer from other highway maintenance funds a half million dollars for maintenance personnel, he said.

Maintenance costs for 1939 were $1,597,000 lower than in 1938, according to the director, but probably will be higher this year than last.

ROTARIANS CUT BIRTHDAY CAKE

Members From 20 Ohio Clubs, International Officer Here for Anniversary Dinner.

With emphasis on Rotary's seeking of "that which brings people together" and avoiding "all that which separates people," Cyrus P. Barnum of Chicago last night pointed to the responsibilities and opportunities of the future in congratulating the Mansfield Rotary club at its 20th anniversary banquet in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Taking the subject, "After Twenty Years, What!" he traced the Rotary movement from its beginnings in Chicago 35 years ago and looked forward to the annual convention to be held this year at Havana, Cuba.

"America's physical frontiers may be gone," he said, "but there are still frontiers for ideas—ideas to be expressed in new inventions, in better ways of doing, ways of doing what we have been doing, ways of doing what we have not yet done, higher standards of living, greater cultural development, wider understanding and co-operation."

Gauthier follows such other outstanding football dignitaries as Francis Schmidt of Ohio State, Don Peden of Ohio university and Bill Edwards of Western Reserve on the speaker's rostrum.

A former star athlete of Michigan State, Gauthier took over the coaching duties at the Delaware school in 1921, and is one of the oldest coaches in the state in the point of service. He served as an assistant on the Michigan State staff prior to going to Wesleyan.

Tickets for the affair will go on sale in the business office of The News-Journal later this week.

Finland's Lotta Svaerds Risk Lives At Front With Husbands, Sweethearts

Courageous Women Defy Bombs, Bullets to Help Battle Russians.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN—The war in the north is a woman's war, too.

Miss Fanni Luukkonen has been there and she told today how 110,000 Finish women of the Lotta Svaerd organization are risking their lives in the war zone alongside the soldiers who, in some instances, may be their brothers, husbands or sweethearts.

"We members of the Lotta Svaerd organization do not fear bombs, guns, shells, or fire," Miss Luukkonen, here to organize Swedish relief for evacuated Finnish civilians, said.

"Although we don't fight with weapons, we must in many cases risk being killed exactly like soldiers while on service. To date, 29 Lottas have been killed and many others wounded in most cases from the bombardment of hospitals in the war-front zones. These Lottas have done their duty, and we are all very proud of them."

Miss Luukkonen, a tall corpulent woman of about 55, with an air of great personal kindliness, came here Sunday from Haparanda on the Swedish Finnish frontier, planning to remain indefinitely for organizational purposes.

The commander herself was credited with nerves of steel by those who have seen her in action, but the bitter warfare of Finland had left on her face lines of fatigue as well as seriousness and bitterness.

"I'm not able to tell you the Military Experts Claim Next Day or Two Will Decide Mannerheim Fighting.

BULLETIN

LONDON — (AP) — Britain today gave her citizens formal permission to volunteer to fight for Finland against Soviet Russia. The government's action regularizes the enlistment of British volunteers for the Finnish forces which has been under way on a considerable scale for some time.

(By International News Service)

HELSINKI—Facing overwhelming odds, Finland's legions counter-attacked on the Mannerheim line today in what was officially described as a successful attempt to recapture outpost positions taken by the Russians in the bloodiest battle since 750,000 Britons fell dead and wounded at the Somme.

At the same time, however, an official Finnish communique admitted that Soviet troops had occupied several advanced points along the Mannerheim line.

The communique said:

"The enemy continued heavy attacks on the Karelian isthmus.

"Only in the Summa sector did the enemy succeed in occupying some of the foremost supporting points.

"Their thrust was checked at the front by our supporting points which lay behind.

"Elsewhere attacks were repulsed with heavy losses to the attackers."

Brief military dispatches reaching Helsinki described the fighting as "particularly sanguinary."

Russian artillery opened up to full scale in a new attempt to blast the Mannerheim line and stop the attacking Finns dead in their tracks.

Expect Development Soon.

Early information did not indicate how many previously captured outposts had been retaken by the Finns, but the population thrilled to the knowledge that the harried troops had taken the initiative against the ever-increasing

MACHINE BEATEN

But Kansas City Thinks That Pendergasts Will Be Back.

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—The Pendergast Democratic machine was beaten two-to-one on the only measure it backed in a charter amendment election, but many competent observers said today it was only playing 'possum.

Reform voters carried a proposal to cut terms of elected city officials—including the Pendergast controlled council — from four years to two. This ends present terms in April.

There will be an election in April to name new officials, but one prominent political writer said he doesn't believe the reformists can get out any more than the 75,044 votes with which they defeated the firemen's civil service amendment which the machine backed.

The machine polled only 38,291 votes in favor of civil service but it hardly tried to rally its ward clubs, still strongly organized. It didn't even get up a campaign fund.

Mrs. William Layton was a guest speaker at a meeting of the Fortnight club last evening at the Women's Club. She discussed "The Life and Works of Edward Arlington Robinson," and read several of the poet's works. HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Feb. 15.

Rather auspicious conditions are noted in this day's planetary setup. There are signs of steady progress, although there is need of precaution and vigilance to side-step tricks or machinations, particularly those emanating from group sources. There is augury for some important financial success. It is advisable to postpone major or radical changes.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a prosperous and successful year if they will exercise precaution and wariness when confronted by duplicity and schemes. There is likely to be an outstanding financial event.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, steady and ambitious, making a success of its affairs.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Olina's eyes were shining with joy as she came up to me.

"I see you've chosen your harp," I said, smiling at her.

"Oh! yes, and it's wonderful. Please come and see it."

"I'd love to," I told her, and walked with her back to the library.

"There!" Olina's outflung arm was eloquent. "Isn't it lovely?"

"I don't mean its looks, except for its lines, but just listen to its tone!"

She fairly ran across the room and swept the strings, and I threw up my hand in tribute.

"It is wonderful!" I said.

"Shall I try the others for you before they repack them?"

"No, indeed," I said. "I'm sure you've chosen the best of the three, and to hear a lesser one would spoil things. I'll trust your judgment."

"Thank you," she said, and her tones reflected the pleasure in her face. "I told the men to repack the others, I thought—"

"You did perfectly right," I said. "Now I'll speed them on their way. I suppose you want to practice until Mr. Veritzen comes."

I turned to the expressmen, and in less than the time I had named, they and the harps and the cases for them were outside in the hall, and I had closed the door upon Olina and her chosen harp, from which she already was drawing beautiful strains.

I found Queen Olga perfectly groomed, sitting by the window, looking serenely out over the meadows dipping down toward the sea. She was a truly regal figure, and I found myself understanding Philip Veritzen's pride in having won her consent to marry him.

She turned her face attentively to me at my entrance after her low "Come in!" had answered my knock, and her smile of welcome was a heartening thing to see.

"You look as if you had something pleasant to tell me," she commented as I approached her.

"I wish I were more of a musical critic," I said, "but to me Olina's playing of the harp which I have just heard—and she is only practicing—is marvelous."

"Thank you so much," she said. "But I think that is not all your errand."

"No, it isn't," I admitted. "Mr. Veritzen will be here in about 20 minutes. Do you wish to see him before or after Olina's rehearsal?"

"Afterwards," she decided promptly. "I want nothing to interfere with that rehearsal."

"Then I shall say nothing to him about your message until after we have finished rehearsing," I said. "And I will send Katie up the back way to tell you that he is coming five minutes before I bring him up. Will that suit you?"

"Perfectly," she said. "I am in your hands."

"I'll try to carry you carefully," I told her, smiling, as I went out of the door. I went to Mary's room, told her that her father-in-law would arrive in a few more minutes, and then went down to the side veranda to wait for Philip Veritzen's arrival.

THEATERS

Music Integral Part.

"Broadway Melody of 1940," gives something new and different in the presentation of screen musicals inasmuch as it in no form takes on the appearance of a revue. Original, modern sets and a minimum of background activity serve to focus audience attention strictly on the incomparable dance routines of the stars, Fred Astaire, Eleanor Powell and George Murphy. This show runs through Thursday at the Ohio theater. The plot is vital and not secondary to the dance or musical numbers and is woven into the drama.

Drama and Comedy.

Reckless adventure in the rich fur country of the Canadian northwoods is offered in "Man From Montreal" which is showing today and Thursday at the Madison theater. Richard Arlen is seen as the young trapper who is unjustly arrested and charged with fur thefts and murder. Andy Devine, his co-star, has the role of a good-natured Mountie who comes to Arlen's aid. Kay Sutton provides effective menace in winning Arlen's love. The second feature is Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy in "Charlie McCarthy, Detective."

All-Star Cast.

"Zenobia," starring a long list of well known players, opened today at the Park theater. Those in the cast are Oliver Hardy, Harry Langdon, Billie Burke, June Lang, Jean Parker and Alice Brady. The romantic adventures of a madcap heiress who runs out on her fortune and into a roving reporter who's out to get her story but comes back with her heart, are gaily depicted in "There Goes My Heart" in which Fredric March and Virginia Bruce play the leads at the Park. In the supporting cast are Patsy Kelly, Alan Mowbray, Nancy Carroll and Eugene Pallette.

Emotional Problem.

"Rio," starring Sigrid Gurie, Basil Rathbone, Victor McLaglen and Leo Carrillo, plays through Thursday at the Ritz theater. Also showing is "Stolen Life," with Elizabeth Bergner and Michael Redgrave in the leads. Miss Bergner has a dual role in which she plays twin sisters. She probes the psychological depths of two utterly different women, both alike outwardly but extreme opposites spiritually. This presents an emotional problem which is real to every woman who has known unrequited love; and to every man who has loved the wrong woman.

Foreign Service News.

A timely story of the adventures of the unknown guardians of America's peace, the foreign service, is given in "Espionage Agent" which is being shown at the Majestic theater. Joel McCrea and Brenda Marshall are starred with Jeffrey Lynn and George Bancroft heading the supporting cast. The second feature is "The Women" with a brilliant feminine cast. This is based on Clare Booth's stage success and starring Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell. A cast of 135 actresses, drafted from the stage as well as the screen, appear in the comedy drama.

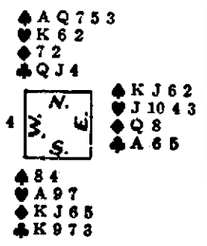
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A JUMP NOT A FORCE

IN MOST circumstances, a 2-No Trump call over your partner's suit bid of one is an absolute guarantee of sufficient strength for a game contract and forces the side to keep going to game, barring an opportunity for a lucrative penalty double of the opponents. But if the maker of the jump bid had previously passed, it is optional with the original bidder whether to go on or drop it. If his hand is an absolute minimum, he had better quit, as a generality, but if he has even a jack or queen to spare, then let him bid some more.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

North made the opening bid on this deal, 1-Spade. South bid 2-No Trumps, North 3-Spades and South 3-No Trumps. West led the diamond 10 to the Q and K.

Declarer tried hard to build nine tricks, but could get only eight. He lost the spade finesse, then East led the diamond 8 to the 9. West laid down his diamond A and returned the 10 to the J, setting up his 4, which he never got a chance to use. The spade A was taken, the spade 3 lost to the 6, the heart J was led to the A, the club Q was allowed to win, the spade 5 lost to the J, the heart 10 was led to the K, the spade 7 taken, then the club J lost to East's A.

North should have reasoned that, without an opening bid opposite him, game was quite unlikely. Add to his hand the heart Q or J or the spade J, and he would have had enough strength for his second bid. As it was, he would have done well to pass South's jump bid of 2-No Trumps. Nine of 13 fine players, to whom this borderline case was submitted, would have passed, and the others would have bid again just as North did in this case.

The Dionne Quintuplets play Leap Year, with Cecile dressed up as a boy and being very coy, and Marie (at back) and Annette acting like designing females. For the play, Marie and Annette got out their first long dresses, those made for their presentation to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in Toronto last May. They've grown quite a bit since then and the dresses had to be let out before they could get into them.

GET $2,600 IN LOANS ON CORN

Richland Farmers Mortgage 4,617 Bushels Since Jan. 1 to Obtain U. S. Funds.

Richland county farmers have obtained federal loans amounting to about $2,630 on 4,617 bushels of corn since Jan. 2, according to George A. Mentzer, county AAA committeeman in charge of crop loans.

Loans will be available until March 31 at the rate of 57 cents per bushel, Mentzer said. They are payable on or before Aug. 1, 1940. The interest rate this year is three per cent, one per cent below the 1938 crop figure. Loans made this year are on the 1939 crop.

More federal corn loans already have been obtained by county farmers than were granted during all of last year when 4,249 bushels of corn were sealed as security, Mentzer said.

Corn held by the federal government to secure the loans must be sealed in approved cribs on the farm. The plan of holding the corn is designed to prevent flooding of the grain market at harvest time and help to stabilize corn prices.

Mentzer said the new system of obtaining loans by which a farmer may sign his note and chattel mortgage and get his insurance certificate in the same trip has speeded up the granting of loans this year.

Rescue Mother, Daughter Dragged From Jail by Mob

POLICE CLASH WITH CITIZENS IN MARYLAND

Angry Crowd Turned Back In Attempts to Force Solution of Farm Murder.

(By International News Service)

STOCKTON, Md.—State troopers early today rescued a colored woman and her young daughter from the hands of a mob of eastern shore Marylanders who had dragged the couple from the Worcester county jail.

The angry crowd sought to obtain from the two women information concerning one of three colored men who is being hunted as the suspected slayer of an elderly man. The other two suspects had previously been apprehended and taken to an undisclosed place for safe keeping

The mob, made up of more than 1,000 irate eastern shore fishermen tradespeople, and merchants, descended on the jail at nearby Snow Hill when word circulated that two women who had been seen with one of the suspected slayers had been arrested.

Brushing aside sheriff and jailer, the crowd seized Martha Blake, 31, and her daughter, Lillian, 14, and rushed them to automobile to Stockton.

There they were met by a detail of state troopers who wrested the Blakes from them—but only after a bitter skirmish in which one officer and two members of the mob received painful wounds.

The crowd wanted from the women information concerning the identity and whereabouts of one of three colored persons suspected of killing 61-year-old Harvey W. Pilchard, Stockton farmer, and wounding his 57-year-old wife, Annie, during a robbery.

Escapes In Swamp.

Two of the suspects have been arrested, but the third escaped a posse yesterday, after being cornered in a swamp with the Blake women. The women surrendered to the posse.

Early last night the mob gathered at the Snow Hill jail, battered in a window, attached a rope to the cell block door, and ripped it from its fastenings. The women were taken from the jail, placed in an automobile, and brought to Stockton.

There the mob was met by a detail of state troopers, and a clash ensued.

The women were not mistreated by the crowd at any time. They were given food and clothing by members of the mob who endeavored to elicit information regarding the suspected Pilchard slayers from them.

The crowd dispersed after the rescue, amid unverified reports that one of its number received a gun wound in the leg and another received head injuries.

BOSTON—(AP)—Rebuffed when they threatened to stage a strip-down strike, Boston's profesional models coached 15 of their most comely representatives today to compete against a team of debutantes in a tournament of glamor next Monday night.

Ruth Allen, captain of the professional team, said Mrs. William Brace Pratt has been arranging the contest.

PUBLISHER DIES

Murphy of Minneapolis Times Tribune Stricken In N. Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Frederick E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Times Tribune and a director of the Associated Press, died today at the age of 67.

Mr. Murphy was stricken with a severe cold two weeks ago on a visit to New York, and his condition became steadily worse, leading to complications which resulted in his death at 3:20 a. m. in his suite at the Waldorf Astoria.

Up and Down THE STREET

The absent-minded professor had nothing on Ross Weekly, West Temple court garageman. Weekly was on the verge of calling the police yesterday morning when he arrived at his place of business and found his car missing. Then he remembered that he went to a show the night before and because of the crowded parking conditions downtown had left his car on South Diamond street, walking home afterwards and forgetting all about the machine.

A downtown businessman is having a lot of fun these days telling what happened to him on a recently-acquired farm near Shelby. There is a herd of sheep on the farm, it seems, and while standing near a gate conversing with the farm tenant, one of the rams selected the new owner as a good target and bowled him over with a well-placed butt. The startled victim scrambled to his feet, grabbed the ram, threw it off its feet, pummelled it and washed its face in the snow until it bleated surrender.

Mansfield's Safety Town continues to interest the rest of the country. The story, written by a Chicago writer, has been sold to This Week, the magazine section of a number of Sunday newspapers, and in this month's issue of Future, national magazine for young men, there is a two-page story on Safety Town, with pictures. The two illustrations for the magazine story were taken at Prospect park and Johns park. Director Frend Boals and R. O. Richards are in the pictures with the pre-school tots who benefit from Safety Town.

Spectators at last night's basketball game at the high school between Mansfield and Ashland were informed of the running score on a blackboard. The electric scoreboard failed to function properly and an old blackboard was found and put into use. Two students manned the board with chalk and erasers. The fellow who had the job of compiling the Tygers' score was particularly busy, Mansfield winning, 55 to 31.

TWO INJURED

Mansfield Boys Hurt in Crash Near Ontario.

Two Mansfield youths suffered body lacerations and bruises at 12:45 a. m. today when the truck in which they were riding, overturned on route 30-S near Ontario.

Injured were Elmer Wildaman, 21, 156 West Third street, driver, who received numerous cuts and lacerations of the body, and Francis Lonsway, 21, rear 277 East Second street, who suffered lacerations of the head and body bruises. Both were treated at General hospital and released.

Willard Rutherford of Columbus, driver of a 3-C highway truck, told highway patrolmen that the small truck passed him, swayed and turned over several times, landing on its side.

PAY TRIBUTE TO TWEEDSMUIR

Canada Bows for Funeral for Governor-General.

OTTAWA—(AP)—Canada paused today to pay final tribute to its governor-general, the late Lord Tweedsmuir, with state funeral services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

The body of the Dominion's 15th governor general, who died in Montreal Sunday six days after being injured in a fall, will be returned to Montreal late today for cremation. The ashes are expected to be taken to Peebles-Shire, Scotland, where he was born Aug. 26, 1875, as plain John Buchan.

More than 14,000 persons filed past the bier while the body lay in state in the senate chamber.

BLACK HITS AT DRUNK DRIVERS

Urges Courts to Suspend More Licenses as Means of Curbing Accidents.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the state highway patrol, believes there would be fewer traffic accidents if courts would more readily revoke driving licenses of drinking motorists.

"The drinking driver should lose his license," Black told members of the Ohio Safety council yesterday suggesting more suspension of permits for drivers convicted of carelessness and recklessness.

Colonel Black also recommended that 120 additional patrolmen be assigned to traffic duty as a safety measure.

Asserting that nearly half of Ohio's 1938 traffic fatilities were pedestrians, Burton W. Marsh of Washington, director of safety and traffic engineering for the American Automobile association, urged special attention to the problems of walkers.

He recommended the establishment of more "safety islands" to which he said pedestrians caught in traffic were entitled.

Noting that a majority of the accidents involving pedestrians occurred at night, Marsh said many deaths were due to "relative invisibility of the pedestrian after dark and an unfamiliarity on the victim's part with problems of the driver."

Gov. John W. Bricker promised the council the cooperation of all state departments and urged that safety education be carried into the schools and homes of Ohio.

KILLED ON WAY TO FUNERAL

Woman Dead, Three Injured In Crash Near Columbus.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Miss Gladys Mae Smith, 50, of Washington, D. C., was killed and three other persons were injured today in a head-on automobile collision here.

ROOSEVELT LEAVES ON CRUISE, STILL SILENT ON THIRD TERM

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, still silent on his political future, heads for a southern vacation cruise today after one of his strongest third term supporters, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, renounced any ambition to be the Democratic standard bearer.

The chief executive plans to be away about ten days, this will bring up to the Feb. 24 deadline when his name—unless he withdraws it—will go officially into the Illinois presidential primary.

Third term supporters believe that he will let his name remain before the Illinois voters, especially since most politicians argue this can be done without his personal consent. Vice President Garner has approved entry of his own name in Illinois.

Asked at a press conference late yesterday whether he would take any steps to withdraw from the Illinois and Wisconsin contests before going south, Mr. Roosevelt said that he knew nothing about the circumstances in the two states.

The Illinois primary comes on April 9, a week after the Wisconsin contest in which Roosevelt and Garner delegate slates also have been entered. Campaign managers for Paul V. McNutt were said to be considering putting him in the Wisconsin race.

Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain who called at the White House yesterday, announced last night that the importance of his present post compelled him to decline to be a candidate. A month ago he had joined Joseph E. Davies, then ambassador to Belgium and now on state department duty here, in advocating another term for Mr. Roosevelt.

Secretary Wallace, another third term advocate, told reporters yesterday that there was "strong sentiment" for a Roosevent delegation from Iowa, Wallace's home state.

Specifically, Kennedy refused to enter the Massachusetts primary on April 30. Postmaster General Farley is the only Democratic entry thus for in the state, and leaders who had filed the petition with Farley's consent said that the delegation would be for the president if the latter ran

LEARN OF DEATH

NOMINATION ON JULY 4, PLAN OF SUPPORTERS

Convention Planners Run Into Protest of Midwesterners Who Want Chicago.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A proposal to hold the Republican national convention in historic Philadelphia, timed to bring about the nomination of the GOP standard-bearer on July 4, was discussed today on Capitol Hill

Sponsors of this plan would rededicate the Republican party to a profession of constitutional government and to the great principles of human rights enunciated in the Declaration of Independence. They would launch the campaign on a high patriotic note with rites at Independence hall and a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Liberty Bell, that once called Americans to battle for freedom.

The plan has opposition from westerners and others, who wish to take the convention to Chicago on the ground that the midwest will be the great battle ground of the 1940 election. Far westerns and southwesterners oppose the long cross-country trip to Philadelphia, despite the lure of a July 4 session near Independence hall.

The July 4 motif however may be transferred to Chicago, since GOP opinion is crystallizing on a convention date between June 18 and July 9. To use July 4 for the nomination day, the Republicans would convene their convention July 2. This may be the date selected, although June 18, June 25 and July 9 have their advocates.

The Democrats incidentally will meet exactly two weeks after the Republicans gather. Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley, who was empowered to fix the date of his party's convention, has told intimates he favors the second Tuesday after the GOP convention.

If the Republicans go to Philadelphia on a July 4 theme, the GOP platform would be written as a new declaration of independence, closely paraphrasing the original document of American freedom. The grievances, which the colonists enumerated against the king of England would be revised into the American people's grievances against the New Deal.

TWO PROBLEMS

Council Gets Walk Request From Mayor Tonight.

Two items will be brought before the special session of city council tonight by Mayor W. J. Locke, who called the meeting.

Most important will be the matter of taking action on decreasing the week hours of city firemen in order to comply with a state law. At present firemen are on duty 80 hours a week and the new law requires that this be reduced to 72 hours. The city faces a court action by the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations unless it complies. Action has been delayed because of lack of finances to meet the increased expense.

Locke will also ask council to renew the sidewalk contract with WPA, which has been in effect for the past year but which expires next month. Under it, property owners may have their sidewalks relaid by furnishing the material while WPA provides the labor.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Public Speakers Ought to Take Tip From La Guardia On How Not to Make Hit

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Several times I have heard Mr. La Guardia orate on political matters before dressy gatherings of stags, and always our little Alcalde has laid an egg. In each case the company, on the average, was fairly well muled-up, some individuals being just so many male Ella Booles, it is true, but an equal number at the other extreme being at or close to the yodeling point. The majority were just gently aslosh on the tide of their tall scotches, which are taken as vaccination against the food at such rejoicings, plus a few shells of wine which the waiters distribute to one man in ten between courses.

These were not political meetings, but social nights out for suburban Americans of the husband type, and I have noticed that Mr. La Guardia merely makes passes at his plates and seems to await his turn at bat in a mood like that of Samuel 'All as he listened for the tread of the sheriff's boys in blue.

Mr. La Guardia's worth as a public executive and statesman suffers not at all from the fact that he is neither a comedian nor a humorist. He always overbuilds an anecdote until the edifice falls in on itself and he has to pick his own way out of the debris.

Yet he and most other public men of sound reputation feel required somehow to imitate the rowdy professional persifluers of the night clubs as a preliminary to any intelligent remarks which they have prepared out of their knowledge and experience.

The result is that when the company has kicked over their chairs and scattered to hotel suites around town to take the last half-hour's advantage of a night's permission from home, the speaker of the evening has been put down as a disappointment who got where he is by political accidents and newspaper publicity.

He is judged solely by the preliminary nonsense which takes up from one-third to two-thirds of his time, and usually consists of punk humor badly written by an office statistician and poorly delivered by a man with no knack for jokes.

Far be it from these dispatches to deplore humor, of which the world has nowhere near enough, but many citizens with the gift of government not merely fail but discredit themselves in the role of comic and never should try to be funny. Mr. La Guardia, giving out on subjects which are in his line of business, deserves attention from any audience, and even Frank Gannett might be listened to with profit, if only by way of refuting the hardy old fallacy that every little boy has a chance to be president

It is not my intention to localize this awkwardness. La Guardia is only one of many who suffer from inability to turn down invitations to unsuitable occasions and try to ingratiate themselves by acting the fool badly. Comedians are a dime a dozen in any agent's office, but comedy, nevertheless, is a trade, and certainly an important statesman shouldn't feel obliged to amuse.

Yet serious men may be seen every night during the banquet season, especially in a presidential year, putting on their specs and squinting nervously at the notes of lumpy gags as the time comes nigh when they must rear up and lay them in the aisles with a ready flow of preoperative wit, to be followed by six minutes of serious information or pleading.

The banquet, or dinner, incidentally, is peculiarly ill-suited to serious political discussion, because the spirit is alcoholic, and the boys on the fringes always make sneaks during the blackout while the baby-spot is beaming on the toastmaster as he presents the speaker of the evening. The rest, being in no position from which to escape gracefully, feel trapped and resentful and sit there wondering how long this is going to take, instead of relaxing with their pores open to absorb wisdom.

Why, then, do statesmen attend banquets? They make few friends or converts. If the speaker really is a wit, as Jimmy Walker, he never is taken seriously, and if he is clumsy at humor they rate him on that phase of the performance and begrudge him the few minutes that he devotes to intelligent discussion after the traditional period of mirthless nonsense.

I select Mr. La Guardia for my horrible example, because he is a great orator in his own line, but as a comedian he is worse than Olsen and or Johnson, yet invites people to judge him on the least important and least of his talents.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Has Boy quit Meeting Girl? Look at these: "The Fighting 69th." "The Grapes of Wrath." "The Woman from Hell." "The Biscuit Eater" (boy meets dog). In all of them boy (or girl) meets many things, but movie love isn't among them. Even in "The Blue Bird" they overlooked the chance to have Shirley Temple bring young lovers together, one of her favorite avocations in previous pictures.

This latter oversight may be blamed on an equally strong (and praiseworthy) new trend in the movies. Hollywood is taking books and plays and filming them as they are with only slight liberties if any. Wholly satisfactory adaptations of recent times include aforementioned "Grapes" as well as "Wuthering Heights" and (in majority opinion at least) "Gone With the Wind."

Hollywood has changed a bit since the old days. In this way, too, as Anne Shirley, a movie veteran at 21 was pointing out on the set of "Saturday's Children." Anne was a child actress known as Dawn O'Day, and

"At Central Casting all of us had two photographs registered. One showed us dressed in nice clothes, clean and curled and smiling. This was meant to show that we could play rich children. Another had us in rags and tatters, a little grimy, looking wistful and sad. This one usually had us fondling our little stray mutt of kitten. This was meant to indicate that we could play poor children." The Hollywood gamut cuts both

The ingratiating Anne is tearing out the Warner hearts—and contracts with her performance in the new version of the Maxwell Anderson play, (Pulitzer prize-winner) opposite John Garfield. This is on the lot where Anne's husband John Payne, found enough cause for dissatisfaction that he pulled up stakes—but then Warner's has ever been short on young girls who could act, and has ever been long on leading men and male stars. John has found greener fields at 20th, where he is the lead opposite Linda Darnell in "Star Dust," story of movie talent scouting.

Tyrone Power hasn't been getting around so much since he deserted the bachelor ranks. He's been pretty much of a home-body. He hasn't been keeping up with the Dance. And he's starred in a picture called "Dance With the Devil."

When his script indicated that he would do a Conga with Dorothy Lamour the next day, Ty slept peacefully with a clear conscience. Anybody, he thought, could do that.

Next day at scene time he stepped out on the floor and began giving his best rhumba—and then sheepishly he had to take time out to learn how the Conga is really done.

FREMONT'S Green Sox will not seem the same next summer without "Chappie" Geygan, who will pilot the Superior, Wis., club in the Northern league.

Geygan was the most colorful manager in the league, and he helped fill many ball yards last summer as the spectators probably got more fun out of watching him battle the umpires than they did the game.

But even with Geygan gone, the league will not be an umpire's Paradise, you can bet. Our own Dewey Stover and Lefty Settlemire of Lima are also quite proficient when it comes to fighting for what they believe they deserve on close decisions.

Although his legs have gone Lack on him, Joey Vosmik, whom the Red Sox sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers, should help the National league club. His presence in the outfield should help make Brooklyn a title contender.

Taisto Maki, the Finnish runner now in this country for a series of exhibitions, pronounces his name "Ty Sto Mackey," in case you're interested.

No world's heavyweight boxing championship has changed hands in a bout staged indoors since Jim Jeffries kayoed Bob Fitzsimmons at Coney field. But many radio listeners argue that it should have last week when Artura Godoy "whipped Joe Louis." The newspaper experts, however, had another story to tell.

Washington Club Has One Distinction.

WASHINGTON may not win the American league pennant this year, but Bucky Harris' club can claim one distinction. It will have four coaches, in addition to the manager. That's more than any other team will carry. The coaches will be Nick Altrock, Clyde Milan, Ossie Bluege and Benny Bengough.

* * *

By agreeing to have a try at outfielding, Hank Greenberg of the Tigers is courting the thing that he most dislikes about professional baseball, the criticism of the customers. What he objects to is the heckling from the grandstand in the vicinity of first base, but that is a mere whisper compared to what he will encounter in the outfield from the dyed-in-the-wool fans out in the bleacher sections.

* * *

Pity the poor batter. The sacrifice fly rule, long a bone of contention in baseball, was voted out of existence yesterday at the rules committee meeting in Belleair, Fla. This change returns the time at bat to the player scoring a runner from third with an outfield fly.

* * *

Chuck Cronin, who hurled for the old Westinghouse team, joins the San Antonia, Tex., club this year, and his next stop will be the St. Louis Browns if he shows anything in the Texas league.

Chuck Davis Through With Pro Baseball.

ANOTHER Chuck — but this one's last name is Davis — is through with professional baseball. A letter from the former Mansfield third sacker says that he will join the Weirton, W. Va., semi-pro team.

* * *

There may be some truth to the report that Tony Galento's eyes are bad. He bumped kerplunk into the microphone when he climbed into the ring to be introduced before the Louis-Godoy bout.

Tyger Subs, Rams Play for Infantile Paralysis Fund

MADISON HIGH'S RAMS will make their final appearance on the Mansfield Senior high court before the Richland county tournament when they meet the Junior Tygers tonight in a game in which the proceeds will be added to the infantile paralysis campaign fund.

Coach Al Fendrick's cagers, in second place in the Richland county league race, possess a potent scoring attack and should provide the Junior Tygers with one of their best battles of the season.

Tickets for the contest were sold in both schools and Harry Mehock, Mansfield athletic director, said today that he was preparing to handle a crowd of 400. A preliminary tilt between other representatives of the two schools will open the program at 7:15. The main tussle is scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock.

MORE honors were heaped upon the sturdy shoulders of Pole Vaulter John Linta this week when he was selected on the 1939 United States All-Scholastic Track and Field team, chosen by Dan Ferris of New York, secretary-treasurer of the A.A.U.

Linta, one of four mid-western high school athletes honored is the only member of the all-star team who established a new record last year.

The Mansfield high school graduate, who is a freshman at Ohio State, fashioned a new world's interscholastic record in the Ohio finals at Columbus last spring by scaling the bar at 13 feet, 9⅞ inches.

Leroy Swartzkopf, formerly of Saginaw, Mich., Eastern, was selected as the ace cross country runner on the team. Swartzkopf, who appeared in the Mansfield Relays two years ago, represented Seton Hall Prep of South Orange, N. J., last year.

* * *

Lane appeared in the Mansfield Relays twice, and failed to place in the event for which he was selected by Ferris in the Mansfield carnival. The complete team follows:

Detroit Threatens To Cancel A. B. C.

LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—Argument over concession privileges and prior contracts at the State Fair coliseum at Detroit brought a threat today from the American Bowling congress to cancel its 10th annual tournament scheduled to open there on March 7.

Following several hours of debate the executive committee of the board of state fair managers recessed last night. A compromise is expected to be discussed.

The argument started when the Fair board's executive committee informed bowling officials that a contract given them almost a year ago was null and void and that the concession right would be given to a Detroit firm under terms of a more recent contract.

SIGNS 'MOON' MULLINS

DAVENPORT, Ia.—(AP)—Larry (Moon) Mullins, former Notre Dame fullback and present head coach at Loyola university of New Orleans, today was appointed head coach at St. Ambrose college here.

NEW YORK—Tony Galento, 240-pound [illegible] New Yorker, outpointed Eddie [illegible], 236, Scranton, Pa., (10).

DEMPSEY TO REFEREE WALKER-SIMMS BOUT

Tyger Quint Avenges Loss

Russ Beer's Rebound Play Features Mansfield's 55-31 Triumph Over Old Foe.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THAT whipping Ashland recently gave Mansfield on the Ashland high hardwood certainly proved costly to Coach "Red" Longley's athletes.

Out in the Senior high gymnasium last night the Ashland hoopsters attempted to duplicate the performance, but the Tygers had other ideas and when hostilities were over the invaders found themselves on the short end of a one-sided, 55 to 31, score.

It was one of Ashland's worst defeats of the season and gave Mentor Vern Hoffman a lot of satisfaction for the 32-27 beating in the previous contest.

Mansfield played inspired ball and some 1,000 cage fans filed out of the Tyger lair thinking that the bengal five would have given any scholastic quintet in the state a battle last night.

Ashland's North Central Ohio conference cagers were in the ball game just five minutes and from there on in it was a question of how bad the Tygers would beat them. It was Mansfield's 10th win.

Once Mansfield located the basket it began peppering in shot after shot to turn the affray into a rout. Only three of the 10 Tygers who saw action failed to score at least one fielder.

Trailing by a 2 to 0 count in the opening minute, Harry Phillips started things rolling for Mansfield by connecting from midcourt to knot the score. Jack Shiplet took a pass from Gene Miller and tipped in an overhand shot and the Tygers were out in front to stay.

Hoffman's proteges outscored the visitors, 12 to 3, in the initial period, but a highlight of the quarter was their great defensive play. The Tygers' tight defense couldn't be broken up and Ashland failed to score a bucket. The Ashlanders had only seven shots from the field that stanza.

Mansfield was continually breaking up the losers' passing attack and three minutes passed in the second frame before Bedwell, a substitute forward, parted the net for Ashland's first goal.

Led by Russ Beer, towering center, whose rebound work enabled the Tygers to control the ball most of the time, the Mansfielders ran wild in the second chapter to grab an overwhelming advantage. Beer collected 13 points for individual honors.

Ashland came back after the intermission to battle the winners on even terms in the third quarter. The lead Mansfield held, however, was too big.

The tussle developed into a rough-and-tumble affair and the two combines had 39 fouls. Ashland led in this department with 24.

Mansfield, after picking up its nine-point lead in the first frame, was ahead, 31 to 12, at the rest period, and 39 to 20 as play was resumed in the last chapter.

When Longley saw his club's victory chances fading fast in the third he began substituting frequently. Fifteen Ashlanders saw action, while Hoffman employed 10 players.

Shiplet, who played with a sprained ankle, Don Rose and Phillips turned in nifty performances along with Beer. The trio contributed nine points apiece to the Tyger attack. Vince Barr, who paced Ashland with six points, was the only member of the club to tally two baskets.

* * *

With Stentz collecting 25 points, the Ashland Jayvees walloped the Mansfield Reserves, 41 to 27, in the preliminary attraction. The Ashland forward collected his total on eight field goals and nine free throws. The Jayvees led, 20 to 18, at the half.

* * *

The varsity tilt was held up a couple of minutes midway in the fourth period when Hoffman sent Bill Herpich into the game to replace Beer. The Ashland scorer claimed it was an illegal re-entry. Al Myers, Mansfield official scorer, finally agreed and Herpich went to the showers. He had entered the setto twice in the opening half and once in the third period.

Greenberg Shift To Help —Bridges

LAKELAND, Fla.—(AP)—The shift of Hank Greenberg from first base to the outfield and the purchase of Bruce Campbell has "solved" the outfield problem of the Detroit Tigers in the opinion of Pitcher Tommy Bridges.

He expects those two moves and other changes to enable Detroit to improve its position in the American league the coming season but—"I don't see how anybody is going to stop the Yankees from winning the flag again this year."

"There's no question in my mind whatever," declared Bridges as he paused during a round on the golf course, "that Hank will make good in the outfield, and boy will it be great to have both Rudy York and him in the lineup every day with their big bats."

Clubs to Vote On Question

Judge Landis OK's Ballot on Farm Amendment.

BELLEAIR, Fla.—(INS)— Backing down somewhat in his stand—although his retreat was slight—Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis today had agreed to a vote by major and minor leagues on an amendment to rule 11 governing the option of minor league players.

This revelation came late yesterday after a meeting of Commissioner Landis with a group of owners and officials following the two-day meeting of the baseball rules committee.

The action went far toward clearing up the widespread unrest that had pervaded both major and minor league clubs since the commissioner handed down his drastic ruling against the Detroit club.

* * *

Under provisions of the proposed amendment, the clubs will continue to operate farms, but more stringent provisions for protection of the interests of minor leaguers will be taken.

Open Second Half Schedule

The Raemelton Farm cagers, first half champions, will meet the Rex Billiards, 1939 kings, in the second feature game at the Friendly House, Thursday, when play is launched in the second half of the Senior A league.

Moose lodge and Augustine-Canfields open the program at 6:45 p. m., and Daley's Cafe and Isaly's Dairys roll in the middle game.

Bill Hapac Heads Toward New Mark

CHICAGO —(AP)— Bill Hapac, Illinois basketball hot shot, may "sew up" another Big Ten individual scoring record "if he sticks to his knitting."

The Illinois captain established a new single game mark with 34 points against Minnesota Saturday. He came back with only nine against Northwestern Monday, but despite this and the fact he has missed a game and a half, he is averaging two points a game more than did Jewell Young of Purdue in setting the all-time high of 184 points in 1937-38.

Hapac, at the halfway point in the Conference race, has scored 85 points in five games—an average of 17 a contest. At this sizzling pace he would wind up with 187 points for the year.

Mt. Gilead Loses To Upper Sandusky

MT. GILEAD—The Mt. Gilead high Indians suffered their second straight defeat here last night by dropping a 38 to 34 verdict to Upper Sandusky. Mt. Breese tallied 10 markers apiece for the losers. Mt. Gilead won the preliminary tilt, 23 to 22.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas blocks up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c and 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

OUTLINE U. S. CROP PROGRAM

County AAA Officials to Speak to Township Committeemen at Meeting Saturday.

Three Richland county AAA officials will outline the 1940 federal crop program to 90 township committeemen at 1 p. m. Saturday at the county AAA headquarters, 68½ North Diamond street.

Speakers at the session will be G. L. Taylor, county AAA chairman; George Mentazer of Troy township, and Howard Stone, Washington township, county committeemen.

Taylor said a series of meetings in the county's 18 townships will begin in about two weeks. County and township committeemen will speak at the meetings, describing to farmers the federal crop requirements they must comply with to share in the government crop payments.

Payments will be made for reducing corn, wheat and potato acreage in the county and for the use of lime and fertilizer and legume crops that build the soil.

PUTS 80-ACRE FARM ON BLOCK

Sheriff to Offer Sandusky Township Property at Public Sale.

An 80-acre farm in Sandusky township will be offered at sheriff's sale Saturday morning at the courthouse on a partition order granted Bertha Harrer.

The property, which was appraised at $2,000, has no buildings on it. It will be sold as the result of a common pleas court action against Herbert Ritchie and others.

The plaintiff seeks to have her share of the property and those of the defendants set off and the proceeds of the sale distributed according to the interest held by each of them.

"I've given them a chance to sign contracts," Connie said, "and if they don't want to, it's up to them. We're leaving Friday night and if they haven't sent in their contracts they won't be with us."

This is indeed an odd war. Because of the Maginot and Siegfried lines for the first time in history nations have buried their armies before instead of after a battle.

SPECIALS HOLD ATTENTION IN MIXED MARKET

Continue to Attract Timid Buyers as Leaders Remain in Background.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK - A few specialties continued to attract timid buyers in today's stock market but most leaders remained in the shadows.

Dealings were inconsequential from the start and small minus and plus marks were well sprinkled over the list.

Rails, utilities, rubbers, farm implements and oils were at a standstill.

Bonds, commodities and foreign securities markets were without definite trends.

Outstanding news inspiration appeared to be lacking, brokers said, and traders were unable to work up much speculative urge one way or the other.

Financial quarters found further signs of easing industry in the summary of the Edison Electric Institute disclosing the nation's power output for the week ended Feb. 10, fell 7 of 1 per cent from the preceding week. The aggregate, though, still was 11.7 per cent larger than in the comparable 1939 period.

Notice was taken of the commerce department estimate placing crude rubber exports for January at a new record peak. For the month 72,496 long tons came in against 71,395 in December, which also was a new top. Trade quarters put January crude consumption at about 52,000 tons.

NO WAR FOR US, KELLEY AVERS

National Legion Commander Introduced by Gardner at Lorain Dedication.

(Picture on Page 11)

Raymond J Kelly, Detroit, national commander of the American Legion, believes that the formula for keeping America out of war is "maintaining an adequate armed force and by keeping the heart of America right," he said in an address last night to Legionnaires of the Fifth district at Lorain. Kelly, who was introduced by State Commander R. B. Gardner of Mansfield, dedicated the new $30,000 home of the Lorain Legion. Gardner was accompanied to Lorain by J. Kent Oberlin, former post commander here.

Kelly told his audience of 2,000 that "if there is any doubt as to whether we should enter the European war, let that doubt be resolved in favor of the boys of America. America has a big enough war at home to root out the evils of Communism, without butting in on Europe's fight."

The national commander blasted all "isms" and said he was opposed to the United States loaning Finland $60,000,000 if it would involve America in war.

"We must not let sympathy permit our nation to violate its neutrality," he said.

He said the best way to maintain our balance in the present conflict is to maintain a strict neutrality and build a defense system big enough to "scare off" aggressor nations.

That's what 50 Mansfield men have said within the past week and a half . . .

Half were experienced sport coat wearers who kept two or three odd jackets in use all the time. The other half were men who were just breaking into the habit of the herringbone and the Harris tweed.

LOTTA SVAERDS REACH FRONT

names of the towns where the Lottas are assigned near the front, because that is a military secret," Miss Luukkonen continued. "I can say, though that many Lottas often have heard the military commanders say: 'I know I ought to tell you to withdraw from the immediate zone of fighting, but if you absolutely want to stay here, I won't hinder it, because we need you very much.'

"Is it necessary for me to say that in all these cases the Lottas stayed at their posts?

"Frequently the Lottas must sleep outdoors in a temperature 30 or more degrees below zero. This type of work naturally is not for everyone, but the knowledge that we are defending our land helps us not to give up.

"Many Lottas have left their husbands and children, the husbands often being soldiers, while the children have been evacuated or sent to relatives. The organization has more than 86,000 trained members, and 22,000 auxiliaries. We are expecting these numbers to increase greatly in the coming months.

"About half of the Lottas work in field kitchens near the front, while the remainder are in hospitals, evacuation homes, children's homes, offices, and so forth. Many also work in the central telephone offices and in supply depots."

The organization, in peacetime a women's auxiliary of the Finnish National Guard, is named for the wife of a Finnish soldier in the war of 1808 and 1809, between Russia and Sweden. When the husband of the original Lotta Svaerd went to the front, she accompanied him to run a canteen furnishing tobacco, beer, chocolate and similar comforts for the soldiers.

She showed extreme bravery at the front, and was proud of showing the bullet-holes in her tent. Later she became almost legendary, and was memoralized in verse by Finnish poets.

FINNS REGAIN POSTS LOST TO REDS EARLIER

Helsinki Announces Victory, Then Admits Russian Gains In Other Sectors.

Russian hordes hammering against the Karelian isthmus fortifications.

"The next day or two will see," neutral military observers today declared, agreeing that decisive developments must be expected momentarily on the Mannerheim line.

Either the Finns will break down or the Russian offensive will collapse, experts said, and doubt was expressed that the former was likely.

Russian communications, it was pointed, must be taxed to the utmost due to the enormous consumption of all kinds of materials, the transport of fresh troops and ammunition to the front and carrying of wounded and tired soldiers back to the rear.

Intensification of the attack on the Mannerheim therefore is unlikely, observers felt, especially since they do not believe the morale of the Russian troops can be maintained.

Finnish authorities, who estimated that the Russians yesterday poured half a million artillery shells into the Finnish defenses on the Carelian isthmus, claimed the Mannerheim Line proper was standing up "like a rock" under the terrific pounding.

The grave seriousnes of the situation was openly admitted as the Russians flung more and more troops into the fray against the determined but heavily outnumbered Finnish forces. A Finnish general staff spokesman called for speedy aid "from the civilized nations of the world," adding:

"Although the Russians fall by tens of thousands, they always have more men to put into action. We need help. We need more men, more guns and more planes.

"So far Finland has been able to hold on. But we rely on other civilized nations to do their utmost to relieve us in this situation."

Advices to Helsinki estimated that the Russians have lost between 15,000 and 20,000 men (some sources put the losses as high as 40,000) since the Russian Carelian offensive began 14 days ago.

Two hundred Soviet tanks have been destroyed during the past three days, it was asserted.

Authorities denied that Summa had fallen into Russian hands but admitted it has been subjected to terrific pressure. Yesterday, they said, several hundred Russian planes bombed and machine-gunned the city, while more than 200 tanks attacked the Summa sector of the Mannerheim defenses.

Nazis Claim Right to Torpedo U. S. Ships.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—German submarines have a "theoretical right" to torpedo United States ships en route to allied ports or contraband control bases, either voluntarily or by compulsion, an authorized Nazi source said today.

Whether such torpedoings would occur, the source said, would depend on individual circumstances.

The new German attitude threatened to involve the United States, already aroused over British inspection of United States mails to neutral countries, in a new dispute over the rules of warfare on the high seas.

The Germans said that under their interpretation, any ship, even if carrying cargo intended for Germany, could lose its neutrality and be regarded as hostile if, either voluntarily or by compulsion, it should put into an Allied harbor or contraband control base.

The exposition of the German attitude was made in the course of comment on the sinking last Saturday of the Holland-American line steamship Burgerdijk, 6,000 tons, which was torpedoed by a German U-boat 60 miles south of Bishop's Rock, the entrance to the English channel.

At the time, an authorized Nazi source said, the Burgerdijk was en route to the British contraband control base in the Downs, off Dover, Eng., and therefore was regarded by the Germans as having lost its neutrality.

Flood Threats Add Peril to Europe.

AMSTERDAM, Holland —(U.P.)— A new peril seized Europe today —that of floods which would follow a sudden thaw of rivers clogged with the greatest ice jams in modern times.

A paralyzing blizzard has hung on for seven weeks, indicating that spring will be late and sudden. If it is, floods will sweep the continent from the mouth of the Danube in the Black Sea to the mouth of the Elbe in the North Sea, swamping crops in countries already on the verge of hunger, smashing down dikes, crushing ships between ice packs in the harbors and further disrupting the flow of wartime commerce.

Yesterday the temperature dropped to 11 degrees below zero here, the coldest ever recorded in Holland. Canals have been frozen over for six weeks. There is no traffic on the Rhine, Waal or Maas rivers.

The cold wave has taken 24 lives in Holland In Denmark, Norway and Sweden, suffering has been intense. It has been necessary to restrict the heating of rooms.

Rotary Leaders at Club's 20th Anniversary Celebration

Two groups of Rotary officials at last night's 20th anniversary celebration at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Standing in the picture at the left are Charles N. Sutton, Attica, governor of the 157th district, on the left, and Cyrus P. Barnum, Chicago, member of the staff of the secretariat of Rotary International, and principal speaker last night. Seated are W. Lee Cotter, Akron, first president of the Mansfield club (left) and George J. Kochenderfer, present president.

In the picture at the right, two former governors of district 157, of which Mansfield is a part, greet each other. They are Rev. Charles Hoot, Orrville (standing) and Harold I. Covault, Lorain. Covault is now extension chairman of Rotary International.

ROTARIANS CUT BIRTHDAY CAKE

Members From 20 Ohio Clubs, International Officer Here for Anniversary Dinner.

sota. Mr. Barnum has been a member of the Minneapolis Rotary club since 1911 and has been a delegate to several international conventions. He has been on the staff of Rotary International in Chicago since 1935.

Speaking of the work in behalf of crippled children, in which Ohio Rotarians pioneered, Mr. Barnum said: "In this, as in other community service activities, Rotary has shown unselfishness by helping the work to grow much larger than it could have grown had it been confined to Rotary or any other organization."

Touching on student loan activities in Rotary clubs, the speaker disclosed that a survey made last year showed that nearly five hundred Rotary clubs operate such funds as a part of their program of service to youth and that more than 15,000 young people have been aided in this way.

"There is still too much truth in the cynic's word for present-day business practice when he calls it 'The Age of Chiselry.' But there are many and increasing evidences that Rotarians and other business men are living by and proving the slogan, 'He profits most who serves best.'

"Many thousands of Rotarians, through their respective trade and professional associations, have made their contribution to better relations between competitors, between buyers and sellers, and beween employers and employes."

"The Mansfield Rotary club is celebrating its 20th anniversary tonight. Next week Rotary International will celebrate its 35th anniversary. Many clubs all over the world will participate in Rotary Observance Week. They will be measuring their accomplishments to date and their possibilities for the future, which come not in spite of, but because of their 'unity in diversity'," Mr. Barnum said.

"Rotary clubs exemplify this unity in diversity through the various business and professional classifications which their members hold, through the variety of religious, national and political loyalties which govern these same members."

Rotary clubs of 20 Ohio cities joined in the banquet and program at which approximately 150 Rotarians, including 18 charter members of the Mansfield club, were present. The cities represented were Akron, Canton, Ashland, Shelby, Loudonville, Attica, Lima, Fostoria, Wooster, Massillon, Millersburg, Bucyrus, Galion, Cardington, Orrville, Willard, Lorain, New London, and Findlay.

Speakers besides Mr. Barnum were W. Lee Cotter, Akron, who was the first president of the Mansfield club; George P. Gongwer, who as president, extended the greetings of the Ashland Rotary; Edward Lander, Canton; and Charles N. Sutton, Attica, governor of the 157th district.

President George J. Kochenderfer of Mansfield Rotary introduced the toastmaster, Alfred M. Colby, and awarded a gold secretary's badge to Walter Willis in recognition of his 18 years of service as secretary of the local club.

Surprise feature of the evening was the entrance of newsboys into the ballroom shouting "Extra!" and distributing copies of a special Rotary edition of The News-Journal which covered both the address of the evening and many sidelights of the anniversary.

Messages of greeting were read by the toastmaster from Edward B. Cappeller, Hollywood, Cal., Herbert A. Criqui, Detroit, Louis C. Chase, St. Louis, and Harry Black who is vacationing in Miami, Fla., all of whom are charter members of the local club.

Introduced as guests of honor were Ray Casper, Canton, Harold I. Covault, Lorain, and Rev. Charles Hoot, Orrville, past district governors.

The invocation was given by W. Lawrence Miller, superintendent of the Mansfield public schools. A. Lemoine Derr led the assembly singing with piano accompaniment by Maurice W. Stretch.

by John Correll, past president of the Young Democratic club.

Meanwhile the Democratic National congressional committee today sent reinforcements to the two candidates who will try for congressional seats Feb. 27. Victor Hunt Harding, executive secretary of the committee, arrived in Columbus and said that he was certain Ashbrook would have no trouble winning in the 17th district, but intimated he wasn't so sure about the party's candidate A. J. Fleger in the 22nd district.

"I'm certain Ashbrook will have no trouble winning in the 17th," he said, "but I haven't had time to study the situation in the 22nd."

Three contestants in the special primaries in this district filed their expense accounts with the secretary of state today. Dr. Ben A. Arneson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate, reported $359 in contributions and expenditures of $358.

Walter Woodward, Republican, of Bellville, reported he had spent $80, which was $1 under his contributions. This was exclusive of the $50 filing fee. George J. MacDonald, Newark, unsuccessful Democrat, reported he had spent $305 of his own money.

FACES COURT ON TRAFFIC CHARGE

SHELBY — Charges of parking an automobile on a public highway today were filed against Frank Sergent, R. D. 1, Shelby, following a traffic accident Tuesday on route 39, three miles north of Mansfield, when six Shelby men escaped injury.

The charges were filed by Merle N. Norris, R. D. 2, Shelby, whose car struck the rear of Sergent's machine which was standing in the road. Sergent told state highway patrolmen his car had stalled and he was attempting to start it when it was struck. Sherman Salyars, Irvin Goin, Pose Wade and Frank Meyers, all of Shelby, were riding with Sergent. Norris was alone. Sergent was to appear before Mayor William R. Morris's court at 4 p. m. today to answer to the charge.

mometer readings ranged from 18 to 28 degrees.

State highway maintenance crews worked throughout the night with snow plows and cindering trucks, their work hampered by drifting and high winds, highway officials said.

Seven snow plows have been kept going since 9 p. m. yesterday, they reported, and all state routes in the county were open.

The county sent out seven plows to clear county roads this morning and reported that all were passable although there were drifts in places.

Driving Hazardous.

State highway patrolmen said driving conditions were hazardous, especially in southern and southeastern Ohio where highways were closed or traffic was restricted in a dozen places.

In Cincinnati downtown garages and all-night parking lots were crowded as hundreds of drivers abandoned their vehicles rather than risk travel over icy hills.

Airplane service was suspended at Cincinnati and Columbus.

Marietta, Lancaster, Caldwell and Athens had 12 inches of snow, Cincinnati and Ironton had seven, Columbus five, and Cleveland two.

Toledo reported no snow and the fall was only light in Youngstown although it was still falling. A stiff north wind in off Lake Erie and drifting was extremely bad in Lorain county, which reported four-foot drifts in some places.

15 Inches in Pittsburgh.

At Pittsburgh the heaviest snowfall in 38 years blanketed the city, cripping motor and street car traffic and grounding all planes.

Fifteen inches of snow had fallen in downtown Pittsburgh by 10 a. m. and it was still snowing. In the northern panhandle of West Virginia, 30 miles from Pittsburgh, 22 inches of snow was reported.

MANSFIELD, OHIO WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 14 1940

Opportunity isn't equipped with a self-starter.

Presidency of the United States is one office that should seek the man—but the search has not yet become very intensive.

It is boasted that modern army planes can travel seven miles a minute and carry four machine guns and a cannon—indicating constant progress in the art of killing.

Piecemeal Handling of Budget

AFTER a recent critical survey of our national budgetary problem, Dr. Fred R. Fairchild, professor of political economy at Yale, said: "I am convinced that congress must modify its appropriating and procedure. Appropriations are now voted piecemeal at such different times as may suit the convenience of congress. At no time does congress consider the budget as a whole nor is there any satisfactory opportunity to debate broad fiscal policies. There is no procedure whereby the revenue raising and the appropriating committees of the two houses can co-opeate and co-ordinate their work."

It has long been urged by economists and industrial leaders that congress take the steps necessary to making scientific consideration of the budget possible. And this proposal, whose adoption is obviously necessary if we are to have anything resembling efficency in federal finance, does not lack champions among men high in the government at present.

Some months ago, for instance, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau suggested that the two houses appoint committees to meet together and consider the budget as a whole. This joint committee, presumably, would not deal with individual items. Instead it would examine total expenditures, with a view to meeting the nation's needs and holding spending down to what we can afford.

Brazil's Coffee Decree

ANOTHER example of how topsy-turvy things are in the world is reported in a dispatch from Brazil. President Vargas, it says, has issued a decree providing for punishment by fine or imprisonment, or both, for the manufacture in Brazil of coffee substitutes or the addition of any product in the preparation of coffee as a beverage. There is no reason, the decree states, for Brazil, the world's greatest coffee-producing country, to falsify coffee, which would be an act against national economy, tending to decrease coffee consumption.

The next step, if Brazilian coffee producers are to be protected by decrees and penalties, will be to require that no other beverage be used in Brazil by anyone at any time.

What sort of answer does this provide for an economic problem? Yet similar, short-range policies, in varying degrees of half-sense and folly, are being tried unsuccessfully all over the world to meet situations and solve problems which steadily become more acute.

Symphony Musical Quiz

DEEMS TAYLOR, in a recent broadcast, described a concert he'd like to promote, at which there would be no printed programs and no announcements or elaborate descriptions of the numbers played. He believes that people should enjoy music without being self-conscious and highbrow about it. Raving about a piece of music just because the program says it is one of Beethoven's great works is foolish affectation if the listener would not have been moved and thrilled by it had he not known the composer's name.

They've tried something of the sort, though for a different purpose, in Houston, Tex. The symphony orchestra played a "programless" concert, but departed from Taylor's idea by having the conductor discuss each piece briefly before it was played.

The audience was then asked to name the selections. Prizes were offered for accuracy. There were 203 listeners in the audience of 3,000 who named the entire program correctly. The whole crowd, however, was so enthusiastic about the experiment that the conductor pronounced it so successful that it may be repeated.

Wrong Ideas About Heart

ASSUMING that Dr. Paul D. White, of Harvard medical school, is accurately reported, as he probably is, and if he knows what he is talking about, as he probably does, a lot of popular notions about the human heart are just not so.

Hearts are not "broken" he says, and such a belief is romantic, not medical. "Strong hearts" are nothing to brag about, and small hearts are better than large ones. Walking upstairs is usually good for the heart. What we call "heartache" probably has nothing to do with the heart. And short breath, fainting and heart palpitation, while seeming to register in the heart, are merely symptoms of trouble somewhere else.

And now, if people can develop a hearty belief in these statements, they'd probably be happier and live longer.

SCHOOL census takers in Tulsa, Okla., are equipped this year with small wooden mallets with rubber tips on the two faces of the head. Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold's shakedown of the alleged rackets in the building industry will have to get along this troublesome election year with a bobtailed appropriation.

Arnold fumbled. He might have got his money if he had linked his case with national defense. That is the one thing these days that will survive — at least in part — the economy wave.

J. Edgar Hoover, Chief G-man, was cagier. Hoover nabbed $1,475,000 out of the deficiency bill to hunt spies and saboteurs in the munitions and airplane plants for the next six months, and got an additional $2,488,000 to hunt them from July 1 on.

But Arnold had a different case. He simply told the House appropriations committee that his investigators had uncovered plenty of racketeering in the building industry. In some cities, he said, racketeers have hiked the price of a home or an office building by 25 per cent.

Even while the appropriation bill was pending in the House, a whole herd of accused people in Pittsburgh agreed to pay fines and mend their ways. It was the first real fruit of the building trades investigation.

"We believe the saving in Pittsburgh alone," said a Pittsburgh paper, "would be sufficient to pay the entire cost of the national investigation."

It's a Simple Plan.

WE WENT over to the justice department to find what sort of racketeering Arnold was after. One of his aides outlined it:

A big contractor decides to bid on a building job, he invites a lot of sub-contractors to quote him figures on portions of the job, such as wiring, bricklaying, plastering and plumbing. In old days he would simply pick the low bidders from each group, add in the cost of the amount of work he would do with his own outfit, then have a basis on which to bid.

But, in a typical case, the sub-contractors decided they were cutting their own throats. They decided to organize a "pool" to which each bidder would submit his bid—just to compare notes. That was legitimate and no chiseling was involved. But the next step, our informant said, was for the sub-contractors simply to meet around a table, take all the competition out of the bidding, and apportion the work among themselves at comforting prices. As other jobs came along, the contracts would rotate.

Getting the labor unions into the setup was the next step. To protect their own bids, the "pool" of sub-contractors would have to shut out an honest low bid from outside. That was simple. They went to labor unions, agreed to pay top union wages plus a cut to labor agents under an agreement that the unions would refuse to work for any contractor who was not in the pool.

That made the set-up complete. Any sort of agreement could be worked out. Manufacturers and dealers in building materials could be brought into the show. Dealers, sub-contractors and union representatives could pick up fatter profits by a mutual squeeze-out of competitors.

Pressure Groups Displeased.

UNDER pressure of the anti-trust prosecutions the combinations melted in Pittsburgh and in Washington, D. C., among other places. Indictments against building racketeering operations have been brought in eight cities. The anti-trust division under Arnold planned to bring in as many as two dozen more. Fines have more than paid the cost. Arnold asked for a million increase. The House and budget gave him $60,000 less than last year.

Part of Arnold's trouble was that his performance had created pressure groups. The AFL, whose unions have been most affected, demanded the inquiry be dropped. Contractors, too, have voiced protests. In election years, such pressure groups can make themselves felt.

By contrast, J. Edgar Hoover gets his requests without interference of pressure groups. Guilds of kidnapers can't lobby. And congress these days is seeing two spies in every telephone booth.

Ohio Anecdotes

Year Without A Summer!

OHIOANS experienced snow every month during the summer of 1816.

The first six months saw the temperature going down instead of up. January was mild. February had a few cold days, and so on, until in April the temperature was definitely uncomfortably cold.

May 1 was frigid accompanied by snow and ice. Premature plant buds sprouted by the early warmth were frozen later in the month. Corn was killed, and seed was sown again, but to no avail. [illegible] was the worst ever experienced in this latitude throughout Europe and this country. In New England ice as thick as window glass formed on July 4. The weirdest story of 1816 is told in William H. Alexander's "Cornucopia" History of Ohio, which points out that the adverse weather benefited Ohio. Settlers came from the east because their crops failed there.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Alexander Graham Bell and Elisha Gray each on Feb. 14, 1876 filed separate applications for patents on a speaking telephone. The Bell application was filed a few hours earlier than the other and thus received the patent.

"Insomuch As Ye Have Done It Unto One of the Least of These . . ."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

LITTLE ELSA came sobbing today—her blue eyes blind with tears, her baby throat throbbing like a frightened bird's as she clung to my skirt.

Little Elsa is only six. She has been here a short time and everything is strange. Words are the worst strangeness. The liebste Mutter has told her to "spreche Amerikanisch," and Elsa tries but, before she knows it, her small tongue is babbling the homeland language. Should that be wrong? And yet it must, else why should the other children begin to yell at her, today, and point and pinch, and tell her to "go back where you came from—back to that bad country"?

But it is not a "bad country" to little Elsa. It is a precious but puzzling place where everyone has gone suddenly sad and frightened. So that Elsa and the liebste Mutter had to leave very quickly one night. Yet should that make the other children point and pinch? It should not. But how can I explain to a heartbroken baby girl that people are like that when the old poisons start working again and the blood hates are out, like a pack of wolves, snarling without sense or pity?

I couldn't explain to little Elsa. I could only hold her close while the sobbing slowed and peace came to her frightened heart. But there was no peace in my heart as I watched her. I was thinking of the millions like her who are homeless and hopeless today through no fault of their own . . . and of the pain we so stupidly give them because we do not try to understand. And I longed to cry out to each one of those hurt and homesick faces . . .

"Do not be ashamed of the land or the people you have left! It is a good land, even though wrong ideas rule it now. Do not try to forget its tongue and customs, its dreams and traditions. Do not deny them or let them lapse . . . or cover them over with cheap new chatter and mannerisms.

"They are a rich treasure, these old things you carry within your heart and mind—your very bones and blood. They are the heritage of the ages. They are not only a treasure to you and your children, but they are a treasure for this country to which you have come. This new and still crude America needs your old wisdom—your craft and customs, your food and folklore.

"Be proud of these things which you have brought with you. Love and honor them, guard and maintain them, side by side with the new thoughts and ways. Do not be strangers in this house . . . be honored guests! Mix your life with our life until, at last, there is only one life . . . One life so bound together in love and service that it will wipe out the bloodhates . . . forever!"

Looking at the little, flushed face lying in my arms, I longed to cry that to all her people. And I longed, even more deeply, to cry to my own people—and yet you do—this! You call yourself a Democrat, . .

"You call yourself— —
hate and spit upon the child because she bears a different name. Even for your own selfish profit, this should not be. Cannot you see that you rob yourselves when you mistreat them? They are bringing you old knowledge, mellowed beauty which you need and lack. Do not turn them away. Welcome them for what they have . . . cherish them for what they are, your brothers. Remembering Him who said:

"'Insomuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me!'"

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Harum-Scarum."

Connoting the attributes of wildness and giddiness, harum-scarum, by the sanction of King Usage, long ago found for itself a place in the lexicon.

The expression is a combination of the old English verb hare to excite or tease and the modern scare to alarm, both being corrupted to harum-scarum.

One of the earliest American uses of this hyphenate is in Washington Irving's Alhambra in the line:

"From a walk, the horses soon passed to a trot, from a trot to a gallop, and from a gallop to a harum-scarum scamper."

My Heart Is Newly Warm.

My heart is newly warm today
For I have found new friends,
And this is joy to me that all
Of joy transcends.

New friends - a new world opens up.
So much to be explored:
New vistas and new dreams this will
My heart afford

That day is set apart by me
In which new friends I find.
Such days forever afterward
Glow in my mind

Timely Editorial

Correcting an Error.

The action of the American Civil Liberties union in throwing Communists out of its key positions is embarrassing only because it should never have been necessary. No Communists should have been in such positions. To set up as a defender of civil liberty a person who frankly disbelieves in civil liberty, except in the special case of the United States, was nonsensical procedure and is pardonable only because at the time the Communists infiltrated the union the Soviet position had not been exposed as glaringly as it has been since.

But to permit the original error to go uncorrected would have been inexcusable. The Civil Liberties union is a valuable organization, with plenty of work to do in this country; but a Civil Liberties union manned by Communists, or by Fascists, or by Nazis, would be, in the light of recent history, a joke and an extremely sour one. Of all organizations in the country, this should be one of the most firmly anti-Communist, since communism aids for everything the union was formed to oppose. — Baltimore Sun.

A Matter of Luck

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHEN I was a lad a prosperous neighbor lived just three farms south. He had wide acres of fertile limestone land. His large frame house was always neatly kept. The lawn and garden, planned by his good wife, were beautiful. The old bank barn was long and not so high, and when I saw it first it had a new coat of red paint. Cattle, horses, sheep and hogs populated this man's meadows in summer, and spent the winter in his barnyard. I loved to hear the flock of pigeons fly about his fields and perch and coo around the well-filled mows. All up-to-date tools were housed in the spacious wagon shed and the big barn floor.

He had an only son. I went there on an errand one autumn evening, and the old man and his son were unloading corn.

"Son," I heard the old man say, as I drew near, unnoticed, "You'll have lots of things here you won't have to work hard for, when mother and me are gone. I can't work no more like I used to. Seems like I get weaker every summer. Some day you'll have all we've worked for, and we hope you'll gather more for yourself. Save your money, don't spend it foolishly."

Another neighbor lived north two farms distant. His buildings were old and looked poorly kept. He had four boys and two girls. His land was none too fertile. The older boys, when school was out, worked out to earn their board and clothes. The father worked an adjoining farm for a widow, "just to see her get along." Times were hard, yet somehow this family managed, and helped in the neighborhood.

Thirty-five years later I stopped at an old dilapidated farm to inquire the way to a little village. When the man came from the shadow of the porch, his gait, the low deep voice, the curly hair that now was nearly gray, seemed quite familiar.

"Have you lived here for some time?" I asked, when he had directed me.

"Nope—not me. I used to live in the Cove. When my parents died they left me all the land and property they had. I got married after mother passed away and we lived there ten years. And I'm tellin' you, every year things got worse. First, our house burned down just two days after the insurance ran out. Our stock got sick and died. Hogs got cholera, and chickens, too. Two of our best horses got distemper and four good milch cows were poisoned. I got a mortgage on the land to rebuild the house and restock the farm, and then lost everything. I've often told my wife it was just a case of plain bad luck."

"Who lives on that splendid farm over there?" said I, to change the subject.

"Oh—him! He was one of them poverty struck Jones brats that always helped other folks when they couldn't even take care o' themselves. He has one of the best farms, now, that lays outdoors, but he's just had all the good luck in the world. As I told you, all my luck was bad, ever since the old man and the old lady died. Jones is my cousin. Back home I never told anybody. Now I guess he don't care to tell folks who I am. But at that he's been man enough to give me a hand when I needed it. I couldn't live there without him."

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—According to most of the people of Louisiana there have been two Louisiana Purchases. One was in 1803 when the struggling young government of the United States purchased the vast Louisiana territory from France.

The second was in 1936 when the Roosevelt administration suddenly wired the U. S. district attorney in New Orleans to drop the income tax suits against Seymour Weiss and other Huey Long supporters. Shortly thereafter Seymour Weiss, previously bitter against Roosevelt, appeared at the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia as an enthusiastic Roosevelt rooter, and the entire Louisiana delegation voted for the president's nomination.

Now in 1940 comes the report of a Third Louisiana Purchase. A good part of New Orleans is buzzing with rumor that the grand jury investigation of the Maestri-Long machine, which rules southern Louisiana, suddenly has been dropped on orders from Washington. Furthermore, it is reported that in return for this the Maestri-Long machine will support Roosevelt for a third term.

The run-off primary election in Louisiana takes place on Feb. 20, winding up the hot gubernatorial race betwene Huey's brother, Earl Long, and Sam Jones. Further indictments of the Maestri-Long machine would of course tend to swing the election to Jones, which for the first time in years would free Louisiana from Hueyism.

* * *

The Real Facts.

RUMORS of a Third Louisiana Purchase have become so persistent recently that The Washington Merry-Go-Round has made a careful check of the facts, and is able to report the following:

The first primary election in Louisiana this year took place on Jan. 16. The week before Jan. 16, a federal grand jury was sitting in New Orleans considering indictments for selling hot oil. Among those whom the grand jury had under investigation were William Helis, one of the biggest oil operators in Louisiana, and his partner, Robert Maestri, mayor of New Orleans and backbone of the Long machine.

On Friday, Jan. 12, while the grand jury was in session, John Rogge, assistant attorney general in charge of the justice department's criminal division, got a telephone call from Washington and stepped out of the jury room. He had been in New Orleans handling the Louisiana prosecution personally and had done a spectacular job.

Rogge was absent from the jury room for nearly an hour. When he returned, he informed the grand jury that he had been talking to Washington, and that it was Washington's wishes that no political figures be indicted until after elections.

This provoked considerable resentment from the grand jury, one of whose leaders protested: "Aren't we the grand jury? It is for us to decide whom we shall indict, not Washington."

However, Rogge, although obviously not pleased with his telephone instructions from Washington, persuaded the grand jury to suspend its operations, so that it could resume after elections.

Note—The justice department, when questioned about this, admitted the telephonic instructions were sent to Rogge but said it was made clear the grand jury could process on Wednesday, Jan. 17, one day after elections.

Partner Indicted.

HOWEVER, Earl Long, the Maestri candidate, did not win on Jan. 16, and the grand jury was not called back on Jan. 17. In fact, it has not been called back at all. Presumably this was because of the second run-off election on Feb. 20 and presumably also because any more indictments of "political figures" still would upset the Huey Long gang in Louisiana.

Particularly significant is the fact that on Jan. 12, the day Rogge got the phone call from Washington, William Helis was indicted. Presumably Helis was not a "political figure." However, he is the partner of Maestri, Mayor Maestri, a "political figure," was not indicted.

Since then justice department officials have explained that through a technicality in the hot oil law—the fact that it was not promulgated—Maestri is in a position where he did not violate a federal law, even though he made a fortune in hot oil.

In Louisiana, however, it is pointed out that a state law provides that no member of the Louisiana conservation commission can hold oil leases or royalty rights, and that Maestri while chairman of the conservation commission held such leases. Furthermore, justice department officials admit that anyone that violates the state law can be prosecuted for fraudulent use of the mails. They explained that Maestri says that when he was chairman of the conservation commission, he was not familiar with the law which prohibited him from owning oil leases.

Forthright John Rogge is back in New Orleans now, and he may reopen the whole case. But the betting is he won't do it until after the election of Feb. 20, when Earl Long probably will be re-elected.

* * *

Who Quashed the Jury?

LAST chapter in the Third Louisiana Purchase is the question, "Who arranged it?"

One clue to this is that Senator Ellender, sometimes branded the "Maestri-Long messenger boy in Washington," was very busy blasting Rogge for holding his grand jury investigation just prior to the election. This is public record. But Ellender alone is not powerful enough to call off Rogge.

Records of the justice department show that Senator Ellender made no trips to see the attorney general immediately prior to the phone call of Jan. 12. However, Senator Ellender has not been backward in calling at the White House.

British Blockade.

THE BRITISH now have become vastly more co-operative regarding the delaying of American vessels at Gibraltar, where hitherto U. S. ships have been held up for two to three weeks, while Italian ships have been cleared in one or two days.

Unquestionably British embassy officials are deeply concerned over unfavorable opinion in the United States, and are doing their best to remedy it.

They explained that the delay is caused because it is necessary to cable to London the manifest of each American vessel arriving at Gibraltar. Then the items on this manifest are cabled to the British consuls in each city to which the goods are destined. Then the British consul in Belgrade, for instance, calls upon the company which is to receive the goods and ascertains whether he has really ordered them and whether there is any likelihood of their being shipped on to Germany.

All this takes several days—sometimes weeks. The Italians however, have been cabling their manifests to London before the ship clears from the United States, and now the British embassy proposes to expedite the American manifests in somewhat the same way.

CHAPTER XXV

Halfway down, Claire began to worry about where she would land. What if it should be right in the midst of a German fortress—or even in a town? She'd have a time explaining how she happened to be bailing out of a plane in the middlee of the night, even though she did have her false passport in her pocket.

Maybe she'd land in a lake or a river, or worse still, in a clump of trees. Instructions she had heard about parachute jumping came rushing back into her mind, and she hoped she could follow them.

Relax your muscles when you hit the ground, she remembered, but she wondered how it was possible when you couldn't see the ground. She'd have to strain her eyes, try to make out the deep shadow of the earth, try to judge the distance and then relax as she struck. That was the way, she knew, to avoid broken bones. Then she must get out of the 'chute as quickly as possible so that if a gust of wind struck it she wouldn't be dragged.

She wondered what had happened to Bill and Rene. Whether Bill had been able to get the wounded French officer over the side, and jerk his 'chute open so he'd have a chance for life.

As these thoughts raced through her head, she was peering down, straining to get a glimpse of something that would give her an inkling of how close she was to the ground. Off a distance, she caught the faint gleam of a pair of lights moving. It must be a car, with dimmed headlights. They didn't seem very far below her, so she set herself for the shock of hitting the ground. A moment later she saw a dark mass rushing up toward her, relaxed the muscles of her legs and felt herself hit.

The jar all but knocked the breath from her body, but she retained presence of mind enough to immediately slip out of the straps that held the parachute and as she let them fall to the ground, she slumped down herself to regain her nerve.

She marveled at her luck—she had landed on soft dirt Feeling with her hands, she decided it must be a plowed field There was a dank smell of newly-turned earth which confirmed this belief.

Feeling strong enough after a short rest, she got to her feet. What had happened to Bill and Rene? Had they come down anywhere near her? She didn't know when Bill had jumped. If he had stuck with the plane a minute longer than she did, he might be more than a mile away.

Cautiously she called his name and then Rene's, but when there was no answer, she decided there was nothing to be done until daylight. In the dark, she found the straps and the cords of her parachute. Doubling the cloth over, she made a seat for herself on the ground.

She found it much warmer there than it had been thousands of feet in the air, and the thrill of falling and then floating through space had set every nerve and muscle in her body to tingling. A few folds of the parachute silk would protect her some, and she settled down to wait until morning.

Far overhead she heard several planes, their throbbing motors echoing and reechoing against the sky. Instinctively, she glanced upward, seeing nothing but the stars. Perhaps the patrol was returning to its base, or was still searching for the lone ship it had been told to intercept.

She wondered how far the Nazi plane that Rene had been flying would go without a hand to guide it, hopelessly damaged as it was. Fifteen or twenty miles, she hoped. A search would certainly be made for it in the morning, and when it was found empty there would be a hunt for the occupants. She would have to act quickly as soon as there was enough light to see. She must find Bill and Rene, and the three of them must somehow hide—in a place where planes flying overhead couldn't spot them and land patrols wouldn't see them.

Busy with her thoughts, time passed quickly and almost before she realized it, the stars began to grow dim in the sky and a faint grayness was discernible.

Getting to her feet, she bundled the silk of the 'chute as tightly as she could, and carried it under her arm as she started out. She glanced in all directions about the field, but could see nothing of Bill or Rene. There wasn't even a house, although there might be one beyond the fringe of trees to the West.

She stumbled across the plowed ground in that direction, certain that if she found any trace of Bill and Rene it would be to the West or southwest.

There was a small stream of water along the edge of the field, which accounted for the irregular line of trees she had seen. Walking along the bank a short way, she came to a wooden crossing of planks, evidently placed there by the farmer who owned the land to get his equipment over the creek. She decided this was a good place to hide her 'chute and carefully stuffed it out of sight far under the little bridge.

Then she walked on in the direction she knew to be southwest, coming out of the trees into another field. There was a slight breeze blowing now, and in the far corner of the field she thought she saw something moving slightly. Was it a parachute, lying on the ground, that was billowing in the wind?

Claire started to run, stumbled over a great clod of dirt and fell sprawling. She picked herself up and started on again, this time picking her way more carefully.

As she came nearer, she saw her first guess had been right. It was a 'chute on the ground, and beyond it she could see what appeared to be a large man, prone.

Sobbing with fear now, she hurried on and finally reached the pile of collapsed silk. She saw a man lying on the ground, and beside him another. Both wore helmets and goggles.

It was Bill she recognized first—the man nearest to the 'chute. He was flat on his back, and she sobbed with relief as she bent over him and saw he was breathing. Then she turned to Rene. He too was unconscious, and his face was very pale. Blood had caked in his leather flying jacket.

Quickly, Claire stripped off the men's helmets and ran back across the field to the stream. She filled the helmets with water, and when she got back to them, started bathing Bill's face and head.

It seemed an hour, but it really was only several minutes before Cameron started to moan and stir, and soon he was sitting up, looking vaguely about him. He didn't seem to be in the least surprised to find Claire on her knees beside him.

"Rene? Where is he?" was the first thing he said.

"Over there," Claire pointed.

"How is he?"

"Still out. I'm going to try the water treatment on him."

"The cognac in my pocket will be more effective," Cameron said, and painfully reached into his tunic for the bottle Fraun Weber had forced on them before they left. It was not broken.

* * *

While Claire held Rene's head in her lap and bathed his forehead and temples with cold water, Cameron forced a few drops of the liquid between the Frenchman's lips. Soon he began to stir and groan but when he started to get up, he fell backward with a cry of pain.

He glanced up at them, his eyes blazing hatred for a moment. Then he recognized them.

"Good," he murmured. "You're both here. I thought the Nazis had me."

Claire and Bill succeeded in getting his jacket off, and Bill stripped away the inner coat and shirt to reveal a clean bullet wound through the fleshy part of his shoulder.

"That's swell," Cameron commented. "It was right through. All we need is a little antiseptic and a bandage, and you'll be all right, although you seem to have lost considerable blood."

After he had bathed the wound carefully with water, removing the dried blood, he poured cognac into the wound, first in the front and then at the back while Rene, gritting his teeth, writhed with pain.

"If it burns a wound like that, what must it do to your stomach?" he smiled, weakly, when Cameron was using a part of his shirt to make a bandage for the wound.

"Are you able to walk?" Bill asked anxiously. "We've got to get out of here before it gets much lighter. They'll have a patrol out looking for us."

"I'll get along, somehow," Rene answered, but he shuddered with pain as they helped him to his feet.

JAILS 3 YOUTHS

Sheriff Holds Trio in Theft of Tires, Auto Supplies.

Three Mansfield youths, two 19 and the other 18 years old, were held in the county jail today for investigation in connection with the theft of tires and auto supplies valued at about $250 from Ben's Auto Salvage on the Ashland road last Friday night.

Sheriff E. P. Long and his deputies, who arrested the trio, found two tires and four galions of motor oil at one of the youth's homes. The other loot has not been recovered.

A number of tires and automobile parts weighing nearly 4,800 pounds were hauled away from the salvage lot in a truck, officers said.

Broccoli is said to have been brought to England from Italy in the 16th century.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

JUST about all it takes is a glance around the yard goods departments in the downtown stores to make you get out your scissors and thread and fashion a new spring frock for yourself. . . . Light weight sheer wools and wool crepes in pastel shades are especially nice for now to wear under your winter coat or to don later on when it's warm enough to go without a wrap. . . . Casino and Romaine silk crepe in navy, rose, light blue and international blue will make grand dressy frocks, or if you're looking for something quite peppy and gay, printed "truhue" crepes are smart as are checks in red, blue and brown sharkskin. . . . There's a new washable fabric for spring and summer wear—"stardust," a spun rayon, which can be purchased in a variety of colors and designs. . . . Oh yes, and if you're real ambitious, you can make yourself an evening gown from the new striped or plaid taffeta in bright multi-colors, or from floral printed taffeta in pale pastels.
